

- ▶ Home
- ▶ Product Reviews
- ▶ Downloads & Tools
- ▶ How-To
- ▶ News & Trends
- ▶ Mobile
- ▶ Virus & Security
- ▶ Games
- ▶ Business & IT
- ▶ Shopping

Special Guides

- Microsoft Products
- IT Decision Center

Watercooler

Check out today's buzz

Tech & Gadgets Newsletter Sign-up

Your email address:

Pick your favorites:

- Tech Flash
- Downloads Galore
- Virus Alerts (plain text only)

Preferred format:

- HTML (graphical)
- Plain text

Learn more

News & Trends with: CNET.com

Parkingticket.com finds cities in violation

Last modified: October 6, 2004, 12:38 PM PDT

By Matt Hines
Staff Writer, CNET News.com

Glen Bolofsky doesn't think you should necessarily have to pay your parking tickets, and he's doing something about it.

Years ago, the native New Yorker got sick of paying off the endless stream of tickets that he found pinned to his windshield. So, after running in circles to find the right methods to appeal the violations, Bolofsky decided to try to capitalize on his experience. In 1982, he started a company that sold a package of documents meant to help people navigate the frustrating maze of New York's parking-ticket appeals system.

By 1993, Bolofsky's enterprise had morphed into a software program for businesses that wanted information on fighting tickets. Then in 2001, he launched Parkingticket.com, which provides a ticket appeals service online. This year the company, which now operates strictly via the Web, will rake in more than $3 million in revenue providing ticket-fixing services for individuals and a growing number of corporate clients.

▼ advertisement

Spend more time with your family.

GoToMyPC®

CLICK HERE

Parkingticket.com's list of customers includes large companies with huge fleets of delivery vehicles, such as Anheuser-Busch and Kraft Foods. Other corporate clients are television networks such as NBC and CNN, whose vehicles are notorious targets for meter maids.

The reason the system works roughly 75 percent of the time and has helped clear an estimated $100 million in tickets over its 20-plus years of operation, Bolofsky says, is simple. He believes that most parking tickets are themselves in violation. For instance, it is actually legal for most commercial vehicles to double-park while making deliveries, for up to three hours. General ignorance of such rules may be why United Parcel Service is another company that has approached the site about subscribing to its services.

▶ Breaking News

- ▶ EU takes aim at Intel favoritism--again
- ▶ Outage nearly over, says
- ▶ France fries cell phor
- ▶ Ex-Kelkoo execs to h Yahoo Europe
- ▶ IBM sets date for ne bundle
- ▶ Apple whistles a hap iTunes
- ▶ Where are Netscape' pioneers today?
- ▶ Netscape: Bowed, bu broken
- ▶ Microsoft selling new Windows at cut-rate
- ▶ Wi-Fi group: Jumping gun on gear is risky

▶ News from the

Try News.com Extra, filtered by humans, n

▶ Stay informed

CNET NEWSLETTERS
CLICK ON A TITLE BE TO LEARN MORE ABC

- News.com Morn Dispatch sample
- News.com After Dispatch sample
- News.com Weel Review sample

SPECIAL OFFERS FROM OUR PARTNEP

- Surveys
- IT Management
- IT Professional:

▶ SIGN UP NO

Manage My News!

▶ Find tech produ

"Most big cities use parking tickets as a method of generating revenue, not for creating an environment of safety for drivers and pedestrians, the reason why parking tickets were invented," he said. "If you begin looking at the actual regulations, you'll find that most tickets are not really enforceable."

The Parkingticket.com system is simple. If you're a resident of New York City, San Francisco or Washington, D.C., you can log on to the site and submit the details of any parking violation. For half the cost of what the ticket charges, the company will fight the ticket for you--and it usually wins, Bolofsky said. If you lose, the company refunds your original payment.

Parkingticket.com refuses to appeal any tickets that involve perceived safety issues, such as blocking a fire lane or misusing a handicapped parking spot.

Bolofsky contends that successfully fighting most parking tickets is not actually that hard; the trick is in knowing how to find the right forms and regulations, learning the rules and filing an appeal.

Some cities, for example, will merely send a second notice to people that have filed for an appeal by mail, without telling them that their complaint was never scheduled or heard. Most people read this as a sign that they have already lost and simply pay the fine, he said. But knowing the rules can make it easy to win.

"We're not trying to cheat the cities out of money," Bolofsky said. "We're helping people exercise their rights."

The Web has proved to be the killer application for Bolofsky's scheme, as he has grown Parkingticket.com from a one-man operation in an apartment to an 11-person business based in Paramus, N.J. He said the collapse of the Web boom actually made it possible for him to launch the site, as he could only afford sufficient hosting services and site design services when prices began to plummet.

The company will launch services for Chicago and Los Angeles later this year, and has plans for similar offerings for people in Boston, London and Montreal. Among the consultants Bolofsky currently employs are retired police officers from New York and Washington, as well as a retired New York judge.

"These cities are becoming increasingly aggressive about handing out tickets, and for the most part, these are just trumped-up violations," Bolofsky said.

Calls seeking comment on the site from the parking departments of New York, San Francisco and Washington were not immediately returned.

Related stories

- Nokia makes inroads into Land Rover
October 6, 2004
- Experts envision taillights that talk
October 5, 2004
- Device has keen sense for mini-motions
October 1, 2004
- Oprah's auto giveaway fuels Web spike
September 17, 2004
- Toyota, Nissan unite to build software standard
September 9, 2004
- Get this story's "Big Picture"

Search CNET Shopp

Compare prices on r
than 200,000 prod

 Speed test

 How fast is my internet conne

 >> CLICK HERE TO FIND

Sponsored Links

▶ Beat Parking Tickets

Guaranteed parking ticket dismissal by the experts.
www.parkingticket.com

Try MSN Internet Software for FREE!

MSN Home | My MSN | Hotmail | Shopping | Money | People & Chat | Search

Feedback

© 2004 Microsoft Corporation. All rights reserved. Terms of Use Advertise TRUSTe Approved Privacy Statement GetNetWise Anti-Spam Policy